

Making The News

Julie Bouma (left) holds The News camera belonging to editor Rich Holmes after the most unusual dive of the regional swim meet took place—unexpectedly into the water on Saturday morning, August 7. Holmes had been temporarily distracted by Bouma while chatting with her—and both were finishing their conversation and walking away from each other backwards. The hot tub was behind The News photographer—and just like in the funny papers—he fell in. Sheila Mear-Hauck who was standing nearby took this shot. No injuries other than to the expensive telephoto lens—and new digital camera that appear ruined after a couple of seconds underwater. Approximately a week before this episode Holmes suffered a heat stroke while in an outdoor restaurant in Florida. After the paramedics were done with him he declined a trip to the Daytona Beach hospital.

Correction

In the July 14, 2010 edition of The Provost News, the article about St.

Anthony's Cemetery should read "Clara and Kelvin Ollenberger", not "Clara and Kelvin Erker".
