PROVOST, ALBERTA

Rabbi Menachem M. Matusof, Calgary's head rabbi visited Parliament Hill to gather support from five party leaders for their organization. Chabad Luavitch is a worldwide organization setup to run social help centres for all faiths. “Chabad Caring & Sharing” helps drug users, victims of abuse and the poor of all faiths. The rabbi was on the Hill to gain support from government officials. PHOTO BY JAKE WRIGHT, THE OTTAWA HILL TIMES

One Country. Community. Day.

One day. One country. And one community.

That's what's featured in the next 16 pages of colour photographs, in sections C and D.

The Provost News picked a date three weeks ago and invited community newspaper colleagues from across the nation to participate in an ambitious project, partly just to see if it could be achieved. It could.

Newspaper photojournalists from every province—and all three territories in northern Canada took at least one picture on Wednesday, June 11 only and sent it electronically to The News that same day or shortly after. We are very pleased with the results and co-operation coming from the professional writers and photographers who took part in this project with such enthusiasm—and appreciate the encouragement one might need for such an undertaking.

Please read the cutlines which include the name of the talented photographer and newspaper behind the lens. Enjoy.
